What you will learn:

Are you prepared for what's ahead? Are you growing your own food, creating some self-sufficiency and food security? This should be your highest priority right now. The past few years have highlighted how important it is to concentrate on optimising our health with quality nutrition eating food directly from our garden. Leonie is the founder of Edible School Gardens program; She has been in horticulture for 28 years focusing on education on growing food with permaculture and organics, and authored 3 books.
